Dear Pet Parents,

Keeping you, our valued customers, abreast and continually up-to-date, we are writing to let you know what Evanger's is doing to ensure the safety and quality of our products.

Although we are recalling all production lots of Hand Packed Hunk of Beef, Braised Beef Chunks in Gravy, and Against the Grain Pulled Beef, Evanger's is continuing to test for pentobarbital in these products, as well as all other beef products in its line.

Evanger's has sent all of its production lots in inventory for third-party lab testing. Evanger's audited the lot numbers that were already at distribution centers, and arranged for tests of those to be performed, if the same production code had not already been sent in. All production codes are currently at the lab being tested.

The following tests will be performed:

- 85 production lots of Hunk of Beef, Braised Beef Chunks in Gravy, and Against the Grain Pulled Beef
- 10 Beef Products that represent all Evanger's Beef-flavored formulas
- Samples from each of our beef suppliers
- Random samples of other proteins

The lab has been preparing the samples, and expects about 50 test results to be available on Wednesday. All test results will be shared with the public on www.evangerspetfood.com

Three samples have so far been processed, all of which have come back negative for pentobarbital. These are the following, and the results will be available on our website:

- 1) 12.8 oz Classic Beef & Bacon
- 2) 12 oz Signature Series Slow Cooked Beef Stew
- 3) 6 oz Grain Free Beef

Evanger's has initiated an extra safety procedure where all inbound beef will be tested for pentobarbital before it is unloaded at our facility.

Evanger's has manufactured over one billion meals for pets, and produces about one million cans of Hunk of Beef annually.

Evanger's will continue its initiative for safety and transparency, and we thank all of you incredible pet parents who have stood by our side through these developments.

Sincerely,

The Evanger's Family
